Free Medical Camp organised in Premnagar, over 140 patients receive healthcare services

Dehradun, Oct 31 (HTNS): Uttaranchal Medical College of Ayurveda and Research (UMCAR), Premnagar, in association with Uttaranchal Hospital and Diagnostic Centre (UHDC), organised a free medical and consultation camp at Ekta Bhawan, Ward No. 1, Thakurpur, Premnagar, Dehradun. More than 140 patients registered at the camp and received medical consultation and healthcare services free of cost.

The camp was organised with the objective of providing accessible healthcare facilities and promoting awareness about Ayurvedic treatment and preventive healthcare among residents of the local community.

During the camp, patients were provided consultations and medical assistance for various health conditions, including ENT disorders, child health issues, gynaecological problems, joint pain, arthritis, musculoskeletal disorders, abdominal and digestive ailments, and anorectal conditions such as piles and fistula. Consultations related to Panchakarma and other Ayurvedic treatments were also provided.

A team of experienced doctors from Uttaranchal Hospital and Diagnostic Centre attended to the patients. The medical team included Dr. Jyoti M. Ganer, Medical Superintendent; Dr. Himani, Panchakarma Specialist; Dr. Chhavi, Surgeon; Dr. Komal, Child Specialist; Dr. Shivani, Gynaecologist; and Dr. Kanchana Verma, Eye Specialist. They were supported by hospital staff members, including Chandramohan, Priyansh, Amit Pundir and Madhav, among others.

Along with medical consultations, the doctors also educated patients about preventive healthcare practices, balanced nutrition, healthy lifestyle choices and the importance of Ayurveda in managing lifestyle-related disorders.

The camp was successfully conducted under the supervision of Dr. Amit Bhatt, Director, UMCAR, and Dr. Vibhooti Chandrakar, Principal, UMCAR.
